"Vikram is meticulous in his preparation, commercially astute, supremely intelligent and charming with clients and judges alike."
"He is outstanding both on his feet and on paper."
"He is an excellent advocate; he is very calm under pressure..."
"[He] has got a brilliantly strategic mind. He spots points no one else can at an early stage..."
"A once in a generation talent."

Vikram is a highly accomplished and multi-talented advocate who specialises in Administrative & Public Law, Civil Liberties & Human Rights, Healthcare, Commercial Law, Regulatory & Disciplinary, Tax, Media Law, and Costs & Litigation Funding. He is known for creatively pushing the boundaries of the law, and has appeared in a number of important cases in all of these fields up to the Supreme Court. He is often brought in for high profile cases outside his primary fields when a different perspective is needed.

Vikram is recommended in the legal directories in Administrative and Public law, Civil Liberties and Human Rights, Regulatory and Disciplinary law, Court of Protection (Welfare), and Costs and Litigation Funding.

In March 2013, whilst still a Junior, he was named The Times' Lawyer of the Week.

Vikram acts for both Claimants and Defendants in Public Law and Human rights cases in approximately equal measure, and was until recently the Chair of the Constitutional and Administrative Law Bar Association. Vikram sits in the Administrative Court as a Deputy High Court Judge. He was one of only two members of the Bar to be chosen to be a member of Lord Faulks' Independent Review of Administrative Law.

Vikram studied Undergraduate Medicine and Law at Cambridge, then obtained the one year BCL at Oxford, before completing Clinical Medical course at Oxford.

He then taught Administrative law at Cambridge University, and Tort and Criminal law at Oxford University, for several years. On coming to the Bar, Vikram was awarded the Queen Mother Scholarship, the Harmsworth Entrance Exhibition, and an accommodation scholarship by Middle Temple.

Before taking silk, Vikram spent many years on the Attorney General's A, B and C panels. He has acted in four cases in the Supreme Court, 49 cases in the Court of Appeal, and more than a hundred in the High Court. His cases are often high profile, concern fundamental questions of principle, and attract national media attention, for instance the Supreme Court cases of Tigere (student loans and the right to education), Aintree v James (definition of "futile" medical treatment), NHS v Y (whether court application needed to withdraw CANH if family agrees); and JB v A Local Authority (whether capacity to engage in sexual relations requires an understanding that the other person must consent throughout). He also acted in the Skripal case (whether blood samples could be taken for the OPCW); the Interchange Fee Litigation (whether parties had settled after expiry of the relevant period); advice during the VW and Mercedes Emissions litigation; Smith v Lancashire (declaration of incompatibility against the Fatal Accidents Act leading to a change in the legislation in causing the right to bereavement damages to be extended to cohabitants of 2 years); Ashya King (whether proton radiotherapy should be performed in Czech Republic); Tafida Raqeeb (whether breach of TFEU article 56 not to permit travel to Italy for medical treatment); and the reinterpretation of the Mitchell principles concerning relief against sanction in Denton v White.

As well as appearing in most of the important medical treatment cases of the last decade, Vikram was a founder member and Chair of the Court of Protection Bar Association. He sits as a Deputy High Court Judge in the Family Division and often hears medical treatment cases. Vikram has a thriving commercial and arbitration practice ranging from general commercial law, to civil fraud, to banking, to international supply contracts.

He also practices in Regulatory & Disciplinary (often providing strategic advice to Regulators), Tax (most recently appearing in the Court of Appeal in a £1 billion direct tax case), Media law (particularly in relation to medical treatment cases) and Costs and Litigation Funding.

Vikram was nominated for The Legal 500 Bar Awards for Government and Third Sector Silk of the Year in 2022, and for Court of Protection and Community Care Silk of the Year in 2023.
