Environment

Daniel is an expert in environmental law. Daniel undertakes a significant amount of work involving renewable energy (including major onshore and offshore wind and solar power installations), critical issues around climate change, water and air quality and the full range of major judicial reviews in the planning and administrative courts. He regularly acts in the senior courts all the way up to the Supreme Court and at public inquiries. Daniel is the joint editor of Sweet & Maxwell's Planning Law Practice and Precedents, which covers environmental law.

Daniel has acted in some of the most important environmental cases of recent years, including:

Cases of note

- Fletcher v Herefordshire* [2022] - Daniel acted for the claimant in a successful challenge to prior approval for a silage clamp.
- HHRC v Hackney LBC* [2021] EWHC 2440 (Admin) - Daniel acted for the claimant in one of the leading cases on the air quality and environmental implications of low-traffic neighbourhoods.
- Smith v Castlepoint BC* [2021] Env. L.R. 20 - Daniel acted for the successful respondent in the leading case on the interaction of the contaminated land regime and the planning system.
- BACI v Environment Agency* [2020] Env. L.R. 16 - Daniel acted for the appellant in the first challenge to an environmental permit (for a nationally significant infrastructure project incinerator in Bedfordshire) ever heard by the Court of Appeal.
- Manchester Ship Canal v Vauxhall Motors* [2020] 2 All ER 81 - Daniel acted for Vauxhall Motors in the High Court, Court of Appeal and the Supreme Court in this important case concerning water drainage rights and relief from forfeiture.
